

Patrick J. Magee, Automotive Analyst – TTX Company

Patrick is the Analyst in the Automotive Reload Group at TTX Company. He assists with the daily distribution of the North American Automotive Pool that contains over 60,000 multi-levels. The goal of this group is to supply the proper amount of railcars for shipment of finished automobiles, while maximizing the utilization of the fleet. Patrick specializes in providing data analysis in order to optimize the operational performance of the North American Automotive Fleet. In addition to this role, Patrick has experience as an Asset Analyst and as a Logistics Coordinator where he managed the day to day operations of specific automotive shippers. Patrick is currently pursuing a Masters in Transportation Management from the University of Denver.